Respect

This week our focus at school has been on respect. We talked about the definition of respect, including the word honor because we honor others by giving them respect. Students heard that we respect others rights, we respect others opinions, we respect others needs and concerns and we also show respect to public property and authority, etc. Respect is an important part of our society and how we come to agreements, understandings and positive relationships. Respect is something that is mutual as teachers respect children and their needs as much as children respect the adults in the building. We spoke this week about how respect reminds us to treat one another with kindness, gentleness, and empathy so that we can honor each other's humanity and dignity. Thank you so much for the example you showed to your children with respect.

Change for a Change

You are invited to dress up on these Thursdays and bring change. Half of the change collected will be donated to the Food Pantry, the Washburn County Humane Society, and the Shell Lake Library. Our first dress up day will be:
